Modern motor vehicles are provided with an electric power unit comprising an electric motor mechanically coupled to the vehicle wheels to drive said wheels. The electric motor drives a front-wheel-drive via a constant speed differential and a transmission; while the electric motor drives rear-wheel-drive directly from the transmission. Each electric motor has a complex arrangement of electric motor and electronic interface and electronic control board. The number of these elements is growing. The present disclosure provides a modular construction of the electric motors that reduces cost while maintaining the complexity in a low level. Overwhelmed by the Complexity of Furniture? This May Help There are many reasons why you should have one of the best home security systems. They ensure that your property is secured from the threat of harm.
